Job Title: Intentional Community and Spiritual Formation Residency Job

Description: More details on our eleven month training cycle, and the initial application, are on our website, www.formationhouse.org.

We are a multidenominational training center for intentional community and Christian spiritual formation. If you looking for mentoring opportunities where you will share life together with other adults engaged in Christian intentional community, your next step may be a Formation House residency!

“Gather at the table” - whether sharing meals, prayer times, or community life training sessions, the common life of Formation House is all around tables. And the majority one’s learning simply flows out of experiences in sharing daily life: praying, eating, and serving.

- led by an on-site Core Group
- weekly classroom sessions covering essential skills for community life (healthy relationship dynamics, leadership, communication)
- daily spiritual formation via prayer and scripture times
- located in Pittsburgh, PA
- runs mid August to late July

Costs and compensation during the residency varies for every person. The most popular financial arrangement involves having all expenses covered, plus benefits and a $5,000 credit towards student loan repayment.

Those who complete the residency, incorporate Formation House training into their future goals of providing leadership at established worshipping communities, or coordinating with friends to start new Christian intentional communities.

What friends are saying -

Shane Claiborne, www.thesimpleway.org: Karen Sloan is a wise and insightful woman. She is helping the Church rediscover the lost art of spiritual formation. I hope that a generation from now, thanks to folks like Karen and Formation House, we will see a Church filled, not just with believers, but with followers of Christ. After all, Jesus sent us into the world not just to make believers, but to form disciples.

Jonathan Wilson-Hartgrove, www.newmonasticism.org: Formation House is an experiment in turning a year of service into a year of holistic formation for a life of service. If you're not only interested in doing something, but also in becoming a different kind of person, this could be the experience for you.
